

McGILL VS. NATIONALS AT ARENA TO-NIGHT

WORK FOR THE UNIV. SETTLEMENT VARIED

This Institution is Doing Excellent Work in the City, and is Deserving of Support.

There are at present more than eight hundred persons, children and adults, enrolled in the various organizations of the Settlement. Of these the latest band is by no means the least interesting, namely, a group of about a dozen Chinese children who are to be found under instruction every day between one and three o'clock, an odd hour, but the only one which could be fitted in. So constant is the activity and stir in the Settlement building, that the resident workers have long been living under conditions far from ideal or even tolerable. It is with great satisfaction that the Board is able to announce the opening of a small house for residents, 265 St. George Street, adjoining the Settlement property. The workers will be happy to receive visitors, and show them the new quarters, and the extension of work now made possible in the main building.

Some of the features of this work have begun to make a real difference to the welfare of the city and Settlement affairs now command respectful consideration when they come up at the City Hall. This is notably the case with the Milk Station, which receives a helpful grant, and more than earns it by its excellent work. Though last summer was an exceptionally hot season, there was no death among the babies regularly cared for at the Settlement, and those numbered at least eighty per day. If the Settlement had only this record to show, the work expended on its upbuilding would be justified. But this is only one of many evidences of vitality. The whole place is a hive of activity, an organization for social betterment which can hardly be too strongly recommended at McGill for its support and sympathy.

Just two items may perhaps be noted by way of illustration. The Mothers' Club lately gave a party for returned soldiers, at which some thirty more or less disabled men declared that they had had the time of their lives. The whole affair, musical programme, supper, etc., was carried out by the Club at its own expense. When the Duke of Connaught, just before his departure, reviewed the Boy Scouts of the City on the McGill Campus, he singled out the Settlement Troop for special commendation, not knowing its identity. Many of the boys of this troop are foreign born, who are leaders of some of the rights and responsibilities of British citizens under their Scoutmaster at the University Settlement.

EXTRACTS FROM THE A. A. CONSTITUTION

Rules of the Athletic Association For the Guidance of Students

The following extract from the Constitution of the Athletic Association is again printed for the guidance of students.

"Outside athletics shall be interpreted to mean those athletics over which the Athletic Association of the University or the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union do not have control.

"During the session, and including the Christmas holidays, all teams and individual students desiring to participate in outside athletics must first obtain a sanction from the Athletic Association, such sanction to be approved by the Athletic Committee of the Corporation.

"Students who participate in outside athletics without having received a sanction may be suspended from the University by the Athletics Committee of Corporation."

MANDOLIN CLUB NOTICE.

The next practice of the Mandolin Club will be held at Peate's Studio, at 7.15 sharp, to-night.

As this will be the last practice before the holidays, it is essential that every member should be on hand so as to obtain copies of all the new music which the Club has been recently practising, and rehearse it individually before the Club meets again in January.

It is expected that the Club will have a few engagements to fill next month, so members must have their repertoire in good shape.

The Illinois publishing company of the University of Illinois, has just announced a short story and poetry contest open to all undergraduates in the University. A prize of $25 will be given for the best short story, and $10 for the best verse. The winning articles will be published in the Illinois Magazine. The contest will close February 1. The announcement of the Illinois Board follows:

The Illinois Publishing Company announces a prize of $25 for the best short story, written by an undergraduate student now in attendance at the University.

It also announces a prize of $10 for the best piece of verse written by any undergraduate or graduate student now in attendance at the University, and not a member of the teaching staff.

Team in Splendid Shape for To-night's Contest.

NEW FACES ON THE LINE-UP

Fraser at Defence, and Behan, at Wing, Will Strengthen Considerably.

McGill opens her hockey season to-night at the Arena, when the greatly strengthened Nationals will try to down them. Up to the last few days, when the ineligibility of Slater and Magee was announced, it was beginning to look as if McGill had a team that would clean up in the City League. Even with the absence of Slater and Magee, a surprisingly good team will take the ice to represent McGill to-night. The team is so good that some of last year's first team men are going to find it extremely difficult to hold their places on present showing. Fraser's form in the last two or three practices has been a source of particular encouragement. On his poor showing last year, he was looked upon as one of the last men to make the team, but, with his present condition, he is due to a permanent position in the defence. Gully is another new man whose work is sufficiently good to make him a fit team-mate with Fraser. Behan, the other new man who will take the ice at the start to-night, appears to be the most respected man by the opponents' defence, that played wing for McGill last year. Scott is one of the hardest men in the league to get the puck past, and McGill is also fortunate to have another man to take his place in the presence of McTeague. Scott was the only man on last year's team who could hold the position with any consistency, and it usually happened that when he was not going at his best, McGill was in a bad way.

The games to-night should prove of the best. All the managers report their teams in the finest of shape, and prepared to go in and win. The early start of practices, in most cases has brought them up to a place that is much in advance of the usual in the opening games. This should also lead to closer scores, as this is true of all the teams. An added attraction will be the debut of the 24th and the Loyola team. For several years past, Loyola have been great devotees of hockey, turning out some fine players. This will be their first chance to show just what they can do in Senior company.

The feature game of the evening will be the game between Laval and the 24th. The Battalion has been taking an unusual amount of interest in all things hockey for some weeks past. The selection of officers for this regiment has been particularly happy, from a sporting viewpoint. They have interested themselves in every activity of their men. That hockey is no exception is shown by the fact that Major Chipman, the second in command, will occupy the nets for the soldiers to-night. Col. McBride will face the puck in this game.

The officials for the games: Referees, Hyland and Lalonde, Timer, J. Prevost, Scorer, W. J. Morrison.

TABLET IN MEMORY OF FRED FISHER V. C.

Many Present at Unveiling of Tablet to Memory of McGill Hero.

At eleven o'clock yesterday morning, at the Church of St. James the Apostle, there was unveiled a tablet to the memory of Lance-Corporal Fred Fisher, of the 13th Battalion. The tablet bore the following inscription:

"In loving memory of Fred Fisher, V.C., Lance-Corporal 13th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force. Born at St. Catharines, Ont., Aug. 3rd, 1895. Killed in action, April 23rd, 1915. Buried at St. Julien."

The tablet was given by the deceased's uncle, D. Lorne McGibbon, who was present at the ceremony. When Lance-Corporal Fisher's death last year was announced to his people, the following message was also received:

"Buckingham Palace, Oct. 5th, 1915.

"It is a matter of sincere regret to me that the death of Lance-Corporal Frederick Fisher deprived me of the pride of personally conferring on him the Victoria Cross, the greatest of all military decorations.

"(Sgd.) GEORGE, R.I."

The tablet was unveiled by Captain Ross, who was present when Fisher was killed, and who recommended him for the V.C. The decoration was worn by his mother at the service.

Among those who were present at the service were Major-General Wilson and staff, Col. Monsarrat, O.C. 5th Royal Highlanders, as well as a number of N.C.O.'s and men.

The official notice of the exploit of Lance-Corporal Fisher, which won him the V.C., read as follows:

"On April 23, 1915, in the neighborhood of St. Julien, he went forward with the machine gun of which he was in charge, under heavy fire, and most gallantly assisted in covering the retreat of the battery, losing four men of his gun team. Later, after obtaining four more men, he went forward again to the firing line, and was himself killed in bringing his machine gun into action under heavy fire, in order to cover the advance of the force."

Lance-Corporal Fisher was in Science '17 when he enlisted shortly after the outbreak of war.

MORE FIREWORKS EXPECTED AT LIT.

Leaders of the Discussion Issue Important Statements of Their Views.

TIME—TUESDAY EVENING, 8.00 o'clock.
PLACE—STRATHCONA HALL, ROOM B.

WHY?
On this occasion, before a meeting of the "Lit.", P. A. G. Clark will move the following resolution: "Resolved that Prohibition shall be enforced in the Province of Quebec."

When Mr. Clark was interviewed, he gave it as his opinion that except for medicinal purposes it was inadvisable that liquor be distributed in the province. The idea that no enjoyment can be had without the help of drink should be dismissed at once and for all time.

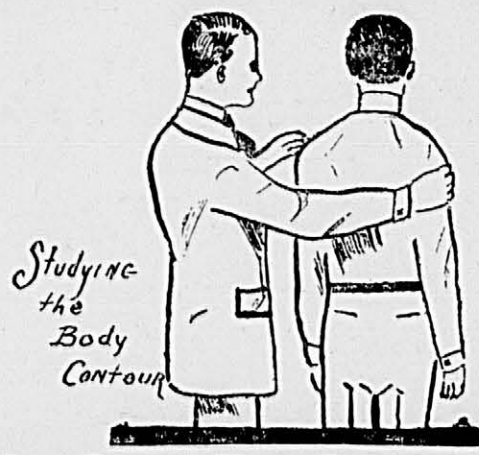

Mr. Clark was asked, "In what way does this matter interest the students of McGill in particular?" He replied that McGill students should be particularly interested, as they will be the future leaders of all city and provincial activities, and as such, the idea of prohibition and its influences will come in for a large share of their attention.

It was pointed out that the enforcement of prohibition would mean that all college functions would be dry, and Mr. Clark stated that this was a condition of affairs greatly to be hoped for. He saw no reason why as much enjoyment should not be obtained from the dinners without taking a drink, or two (or three).

Mr. Varian S. Green, who will introduce the negative side of the question, was naturally quite opposed to these sentiments. He stated that no proper college spirit could be developed without the fraternizing effects of a little wet stuff. He longed for the day when sawdust would be spread over the floors of the Union, when free drinks would be the watchword of each and every one who entered its precincts, and the Union become a beer-garden. There is no reason why anyone should be denied the right of stowing away all the booze he can lay his hands on.

Whichever view you hold, you should under no conditions keep it to yourself. Come down and let everyone know what you think about this question. Each and every person around the University must have formed some opinion on this important question. Attend that meeting, and tell others what are your reasons for that opinion. Help the other members of the "Lit." decide what shall be the issue of this momentous question. Shall Quebec go dry? That is what we are going to argue about, and we want your help.

The only men who have the right to stay away are the men of Arts '19. (Continued on Page 4.)

Cultivating
ROSE QUESNEL

Native Canadian Tobacco

Tobacco requires thorough and frequent cultivation.

Tobacco requires a large amount of care throughout its growth. Constant shallow cultivation is practised after the tobacco plants are set out until they have reached a size where further cultivation would damage the leaves and injure the roots. The plant, in its early stages is liable to injury from the attacks of the tobacco-worm and other parasites which commit great devastation in the crops. To prevent the leading stem from running up too quickly to flower and seed, and so starving the leaves, the top is nipped off with the thumb nail, leaving only nine or twelve leaves on each stem. Later on the suckers or shoots which now make their appearance at the junction of the leaves and about the roots of the plants, are removed. Tobacco is also subject to "firing," a kind of blight causing much injury to the crops. The planter must, therefore, protect his crop against all these possible injuries by proper spraying and cultivating.

All of these different operations take time and cost money, but the increased price which the planter receives for his crop warrants the expenditure and care. Nothing but tobacco cultivated as above enters into the making of

EFFICIENCY.

What is involved in the present urgent demand for efficiency? Within the next few days every man in the Dominion between the ages of sixteen and sixty-five will, in the interests of national service, be called upon to present an account of the part he is taking or is willing, in the future, to take in furthering the cause of the Empire. This endeavour to increase the degree of efficiency which Canada is at present maintaining—for that is in reality the purpose of the movement—is suggested not so much by the momentarily all-important problem of overcoming our enemies as by the far-reaching and involved question of our future after the declaration of peace. A full realization of the fact that the efficiency of our national service as a Dominion depends upon the personal efforts of each of its citizens has prompted our Government to adopt this individual solicitation. The nation expects from each person the utmost of which he is capable, regardless of his status or vocation; whether he be included among those who have so gallantly offered themselves for foreign battlefields or whether by circumstances compelled to form a very minute cog in the wheel of Canadian industry.

The student can by no means be justified in regarding himself as being free from obligation in this all-important question of national service. We turn our eyes with reverence and pride upon the Roll of Honor which bears the names of so many of our heroic friends. Many have gallantly responded to the call to arms, and many more would in all gladness follow their noble example were they free to do so. But those of us, who are for various reasons prohibited from performing that great service which so often requires the sacrifice of life itself, are truly in honor bound to make the very best use of the opportunities which present themselves.

National problems such as we now face must await solution by men of technical training—men possessing the insight and foresight which accompanies such a training. We cannot view the tremendous accomplishments of our Hohenzollern enemies without realizing the essentiality of the thorough technical training which is so characteristic of them.

It is therefore to men who are thoroughly competent in matters of such a nature that our country must look for guidance and leadership; and of this training the University is the foundation. Hence with eyes upon the glorious and valiant sacrifice of others we must for our part bend every effort towards the acquisition of that knowledge and skill with which, when fully equipped, we will be capable of grappling with and solving the besetting problems we will be called upon to face.

However, the mere acquisition of technical skill which has done so much to strengthen the national status of Germany, and yet which will inevitably accomplish its downfall cannot fail to do the same for us unless it is permeated with profound principle and character. We, as students, then, must fully realize the obligation which is ours, and in striving to acquire the knowledge which will render us competent we must develop such principles as will form a firm foundation for the future prosperity of Canada.

HOCKEY TO-NIGHT.

For the first time this year, McGill will be represented by a team in a major sport, when the hockey team stack up against Nationals in the opening fixture of the City League to-night. All the clubs represented in the league outside of McGill, promise that a large number of their supporters will be on hand this evening to do everything possible for their favorites. The Loyola College will be out practically to a man, to support a team that has never appeared in Senior Hockey before. With the officers of the 244th all backing their team enthusiastically, a crowd of khaki-clad men will occupy one side of the rink. Laval can also be depended upon to support their men in the usual great style. With these indications of the interest of the other clubs coming to our attention daily, McGill men should make every possible effort to get out to-night and witness the game in numbers. It is never a great advertisement to McGill to have poor crowds supporting her teams, nor is it quite the right spirit to let men devote the best of their efforts for weeks in advance, in getting together a team for which McGill is not willing to come and cheer.

It is sometimes said by men who claim they are more than usually proud of McGill and deeply endowed with "college spirit," that McGill men should not be asked to support a losing team. It is confidently expected that we will not be called upon to support a losing team this year at any rate. The combination of the remainder of the old team and some new blood will undoubtedly change the situation for McGill this season.

Even were they to prove a losing team, one must realize that losing teams are sometimes the gamiest ones, and the most respected, even by those who find it easiest to beat them. Certainly men with the proper spirit deserve to have that fighting spirit kindled even stronger by the loyal efforts of those whom they represent. They will need it to-night.

It is up to you, as a McGill man, to get out to the Arena to-night and get the old "McGill" yell into them.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Daily is not responsible for the sentiments of letters published in the correspondence column. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculty will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office—that they write upon ONE side of the paper ONLY.

Editor, McGill Daily:

Sir—It is as clear as day, and as evident as the sun, that the Directors of the McGill Y. M. C. A. have lost all sense of the ridiculous, for in no other way can we explain the changing of their so-called "vice commission."

That this will prove a "vice commission," but in another sense I have not the slightest doubt, for it will result in giving your, at present most excellent but sadly unsophisticated young gentlemen, a great deal of knowledge that they are far better without. I am quite certain that all of these gentlemen are absolutely incompetent to undertake such an investigation. No one of them has enjoyed the medical, legal, psychological or criminological training that is required, if such an investigation is not to degenerate into a mere pornographical orgy. Which one of them, I ask, has had any police experience, or is in any way acquainted with the ways of the underworld in this city?

This knowledge is not very usual among police officers of long service, and I may say for the information of the "commission," is not to be obtained by going "stumping" for the first time, to put it nicely, or by visiting a crap game, and then getting hauled into the "booby-hatch," an accident which is liable to befall the inexperienced. Were not this piece of hypocrisy connected with such serious consequences for these young gentlemen, I should be inclined to laugh, but instead I hope the authorities will prevent this useless "mas-sacre of the innocents."

Again, none of these gentlemen has any political standing, and how, I ask, are they going to get any one to listen to their findings? Their report will provoke nothing but derision, and will carry no more weight, than if the material had been collected and the report itself drawn up, from a clandestine collection of French penny-dreadfuls, inside a young ladies' boarding-school.

ROBERT J. CLARK.

PHYRNE AND FRANKENSTEIN.

Dear Frankenstein,—I am glad you broached the subject of war, else I might have continued silent upon it. You know it is on grander facon among women nowadays to be patriotic. Not long ago a wrinkled spinster remarked proudly that if she had a dozen grown-up sons she would send them all to fight. I cannot be persuaded to think along similar lines.

I look at the animal world and I find peace reigning among the members of the same species. I see that a colony of ants becomes a mighty force in virtue of the unity of its members, and that even bears cautiously avoid their wounds. The mutual aid among the bees is well known. The tranquility of their busy way city, their sense of duty expressed in perpetual work, in sympathy for one another,—all this ought to be familiar to every child. But even among the carnivores the members of the same group respect each other. Wolves hunt in packs, and tigers never devour their own kind.

Kropotkin has well disposed of the lie regarding "the struggle for existence." He has proved conclusively that mutual aid is as much a factor in the evolution of species as the struggle for life. In fact it can be shown that wherever mutual aid does exist there shall we find the highest degree of prosperity.

But how comes it that wars to the death break out among the most intellectual beings on earth? Here is my explanation. Most animals can obtain only the necessities of life. As soon as these give out they unite again in hordes in search of more food. Thus every member of the group is equally valuable, receiving neither a higher nor a lower place than its fellow-creatures. Sometimes, as with the queen bee, the different physical function may assign a different place to one member. But this difference consists mainly in the difference of function.

Man, on the other hand, capable of producing tools, has learned from very early times to provide for more than his immediate needs. Perhaps in the beginning the strongest individuals were given charge of the stores of the community. Consequently great prestige fell to a chosen few, and this was undoubtedly heightened by their seizing the wealth of the community, thus imposing their rule upon the rest. But greed engenders greed. Not satisfied with what they had, or perhaps forced to migrate owing to natural changes, the tribe made war upon their neighbours, the lion's share of the booty falling again into the hands of the chosen few.

Thus gradually evolved a formidable aristocracy, strengthened by the glamour of tradition, by wealth, and by the influence of a priest class. But an aristocracy in power needs war to keep itself there. Xerxes, who led his hosts across the Hellespont understood that; Hannibal knew that victories would keep up the splendour of the House of Barca; and Napoleon drew his Grande Armee against the Austrians at Jena and Wagram in order to keep himself in the saddle.

And so we have war, kindled by ambition and fostered by greed. And so conceptions of honour arose which took centuries to imbue themselves in the plastic brain of the common people. And so we have military burials, medals, ribbons, and goose-marches, and the rest of the paraphernalia which go to overawe the common people and induce them to fight battles waged for the benefit of their oppressors.

Some of the great soldier-leaders were very candid, and knowing, as they did, the great power with which they were invested, and also the impermeable ignorance of the masses, revealed the whole secret of this grand delusion in a few sentences. It was Napoleon, I believe, who said that with rattles we win babies and men with medals. The frankest of all tyrants, however, was Frederick the Great, the ancestor of the present

LAST PARADE OF C. O. T. C.

The C. O. T. C. paraded for the last time this year on Saturday afternoon on the Campus. The drill consisted chiefly of rifle exercises, relieved at intervals by company manoeuvres. To all appearances the Battalion is making very satisfactory progress in the various branches of training, and will soon be quite efficient. Drills have been suspended until January 4th. Next year the officers plan to undertake various field manoeuvres, and this will in probability include periodical trips over the Mountain and outpost work.

Figure and dance skating is becoming more popular every year. More and more you see it at the rink. It is such a delightful exercise and offers unlimited variety of movements.

The "STARR" International Figure Skate is specially designed for the purpose and is made for both ladies and gentlemen.

Some may say "it looks funny"—Yes, but it's made to do funny things—bobs, twists, turns, corks, screws, curves, long glides, etc.

The radius is scientifically correct. The saw-like edge on the toe enables the skater to stop and turn or pivot accurately.

Made from best Sheffield steel—welded and hand tempered by our secret process—nickel plated and highly polished—and in the largest skate factory in the British Empire.

HE LIVED UP TO HIGHEST IDEALS OF MCGILL SAYS FELLOW SOLDIER OF SERGT. J. L. A. ROBERTSON

Warm Appreciation of Architecture Graduate Is Contained in Letter from Lieut. Donald MacLean, of the P.P.C.L.I., Himself Now Wounded—Distinguished Service Order for Major Phillip Burnett, Med. '00—Capt. H. A. Jones, Med. '00, Returns to Canada After Service On the Front With the C.A.M.C.—Major Maurice Alexander, Law '10, is Promoted to the Rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

THE WEEK'S CASUALTIES

Wounded.
MacLean, Lieut. Donald, past student, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.
Montgomery, Lieut. L. C., Med. '17, 42nd Battalion.

The Week's Decorations.

Burnett, Major Phillip, Med. '00, Canadian Army Medical Corps, awarded Distinguished Service Order (official).
Hutchinson, Corp. Ross R., Arts '17, Divisional Signal Company, awarded Military Medal (official).
Rutherford, Corp. A. B., Sci. '16, Divisional Signal Company, awarded Military Medal (official).

A warm appreciation of the late Sergeant J. Louis A. Robertson, Arch. '15, killed in action in July last, is contained in a letter received Wednesday morning by McGill Daily from Lieut. Donald MacLean, past student with Arts '16, and now with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. A strange coincidence is found in the fact that Lieut. MacLean was himself reported wounded in Wednesday morning's casualty list.

Lieut. MacLean writes from the trenches under date of November 25 as follows:
"I have just been reading your paper of October 3rd, and I would like to tell you a little about Sergeant J. L. A. Robertson, who was mentioned among those killed in Flanders.
"He and I were sergeants together for ten months, and I learned to like him more than any friend I have ever had. I have never known anyone more unselfish or so generous in his opinions of others. This was for him a great many friends in the Regiment, especially among the 'old-timers,' who were more or less given to calling us 'McGills' (a name which in the early days meant a sort of jam-eating soldier), and to thinking we would not be ready to chum up with the real old soldiers. Robertson's friendship for all those boys was so great that he did not wish to take a commission in the battalion when it was offered to him, because he feared that as an officer he could not mix with the men in the most friendly and unreserved manner.
"After we were acknowledged as fine fellows by the veterans of the second battle of Ypres, we felt that a high hill had been climbed, and we were going nearer to the place where we would be one with the 'originals,' but still we had to show our fighting qualities in battle in order to prove our right to share in the honors of our famous regiment. The opportunity came in June, and after the fighting I heard an old sergeant say in most emphatic tones, 'Whoever says the McGill boys are not great soldiers is no friend of mine, for the old-timers never fought so well.' I know he meant this, and that we were sure of our place among these tried men.

"I do not know anyone who did more in winning our way than Sergeant Robertson. He was everywhere among his men during the heavy shelling. In the early days of the morning of June 3rd, when we were retreating, he was one of the men who was not hurrying, and he even came back to help some of the rest along. I have never seen a fellow in the open looking cooler under heavy fire.
"It was with this brave spirit, coupled with his great devotion to the men in his charge that he met his death, while encouraging his platoon, under heavy fire from German trench mortars, in the early morning of July 18th.

"There are many names on the Honor Roll of McGill University, but the name of Sergeant J. L. A. Robertson should stand among the highest, and his example led many others to play the man, for he was a McGill man who in the greatest meaning of the words lived up to the highest ideals of 'Old McGill.'"

Lieut. MacLean, who is reported wounded, enlisted originally with the First Universities Company as a private. He was promoted to the rank of sergeant on account of his splendid ability as a soldier, and of his fine physique. At the spring Training Camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake he made a name for himself as a wrestler. He is the son of Roderick MacLean, Burnaby, B.C., and was born at Valleyfield, P.E.I., on September 18, 1890.

Among the awards of Companionship of the Distinguished Service Order announced by the War Office is that of Major Phillip Burnett, Med. '00, who is second in command of No. 6 Canadian Field Ambulance on the French front. Major Burnett, in the words of the official announcement, "Took over command of stretcher bearers at the front, and within forty-eight hours, carried out numerous duties with great skill and determination though under heavy fire." Major Burnett, who is lecturer in dermatology in the Faculty of Medicine, and dermatologist to the Royal Victoria Hospital, took charge of the organization of No. 6 Field Ambulance here in the spring of 1915, and went overseas as second in command. He has since been with his unit in France, and has been rendering constant useful and gallant service.

Dr. H. A. Jones, Med. '00, who gave up his practice at Salisbury, N.B., a year ago, to do his bit in a professional way at the front, reached home last week. The ocean trip was made in fast time. He has had a busy year, and while he has had to work hard he is looking fine and never felt better in his life. Wherever he went in England and France he was splendidly treated, not only by his fellow professional men, soldiers and officers, but by the people in general. Dr. Jones was at the battle of the Somme for about three weeks, and had some close calls, but fortunately escaped without a scratch. He was in one dugout at the Somme when the affair was almost completely demolished by shells; several of his fellow doctors and assistants were killed. He happened at the time to be at the opposite end of the dugout from which his less fortunate comrades were standing. Dr. Jones speaks in the highest terms of the courage and optimism of the boys at the front. He has seen men fatally wounded who would laugh and joke and probably say: "Well, they got me that time, but we gave it to them all the same; hand me a cigarette."

Dr. Jones will probably return to the front again in the course of a couple of months.

The marriage took place in London, Eng., on November 16, of Captain Douglas Weir, Sci. '10, son of the Hon. R. Stanley Weir and Mrs. Weir, of Westmount, to Wilmet, daughter of the late Mr. William Gow, of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Lieut. W. Eric C. Irwin, Sci. '11, who went overseas as one of the officers of the First Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., and who was seriously wounded last summer, has now returned to his home in Ottawa, on extended sick leave. Lieut. Irwin was one of the first officers of the McGill C.O.T.C. to volunteer when the organization of the First Universities Company was started.

A London despatch says that Major Maurice Alexander, Law '10, assistant judge advocate-general of the Canadian forces overseas, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Lieut. Herbert S. Everett, Arts '16, who went overseas with the wounded and invalided home to Canada, has now been attached to the 236th Battalion of Fredericton, N.B. His home is in St. Andrews, N.B.

2nd Lieut. C. C. Lindsay, Sci. '15, recently wounded, has been invalided home to Canada, and is now on sick leave at his home in Quebec. Lieut. Lindsay has been attached to the Indian troops in France.

Lieut. J. A. Creason, Sci. '14, 60th Battalion, C.E.F., has been invested with the Military Cross by His Majesty King George.

Capt. Osborne Morris, Med. '00, of Vernon, B.C., is under orders to proceed overseas with a draft of the C. A. M. C. for the front.

Lieut. Donald MacLean, past student, who has been wounded, is at Le Touquet with gunshot wounds in the left arm, severe, according to press advices.

Dr. W. W. White, Arts '85, Med. '86, was the guest of honour of the medical profession of St. John, N.B., at a surprise dinner given on Thursday evening, on the occasion of his 54th birthday.

The relative influence of the novel and the play were debated by the members of the Delta Sigma Society at a meeting held on Wednesday.

Problems which are likely to arise in India after the war were brought up at a meeting of the Historical Club on Wednesday.

Lieut. L. C. Montgomery, wounded, is none other than the famous "Monty," all-around McGill senior athlete and brilliant student. He went overseas with No. 3 Canadian General Hospital, and transferred to the infantry in order that he might see active fighting. Lieut. Montgomery has been only slightly wounded, so a private cable sent by the celebrated footballer and hockey player states.

Plans for the formation of a second McGill seige battery for overseas service have been approved by the Military Committee of the University, and application for its authorization will be made to the authorities about the beginning of the New Year. Capt. Stopford Brunton, one of the prime movers in the project, is out of town at present, but is expected back within the next two weeks. On his return the plans will be definitely formulated for presentation to the Government.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Interest during the week just closed has centred in the visit to the University of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire; the Union informal dance; the first event of the kind in three sessions; the Students' Council elections; and the subsequent charges made in the Students' Council; and the opening of the hockey season.

His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, Governor-General of Canada and visitor to the University; the Duchess of Devonshire, Lady Blanche Cavendish, Lady Maude Cavendish, and Hon. Charles Cavendish, visited the University on Thursday, a special convocation being held in the Royal Victoria College for the purpose of conferring the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon the Governor-General. Previous to the ceremony the Governor-General inspected the McGill Contingent, Canadian Officers' Training Corps, before the Royal Victoria College. An address from the Corporation of the University was read by Sir William Peterson.

The Union informal dance was held on Friday evening, with an attendance of approximately 120 couples. The dance was held for the benefit of the McGill Women's Union, which is engaged in sending comforts to the men of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and it is expected that between forty and fifty dollars will be turned over for this worthy purpose, as the proceeds of the dance.

The election of Faculty representatives to the Students' Council on Monday resulted in the return of the following: Arts, K. P. Tsolalinos; Law, T. P. Dillon; Science, W. H. Schiele. H. H. Pitts was elected by acclamation as representative from Medicine. The elections were closely fought, and there were small majorities recorded in each Faculty. As an aftermath, the charges of canvassing and lobbying brought by R. J. Clarke, Arts representative, at the meeting of the Students' Council, provided a sensation. The Students' Council is to investigate the charges upon a written statement from Mr. Clarke, and will endeavor to devise means of effecting a reform in elections at the University.

The Electric Club on Wednesday visited Cedars Rapids, and there inspected the plant of the development company, under the direction of R. M. Wilson, who designed the electrical end of the plant.

The most complete detailed schedule that has ever been offered for the short course in mining engineering at the University of Washington, has been announced by the mines faculty. The winter session this year, which extends from January 2 to March 30, is the twentieth to be held at Washington, and early indications are that the registration will show a marked increase over any previous year, according to those in charge of the organization of the work.

BOYSTERERS ACUTED IN ROAD-USE RAIDS

College Students Escaped in Nightrobes, Carrying Clothes
In Their Arms.

A Brewster, N.Y., despatch, says: When raids were made upon two roadhouses near here at three o'clock this morning, following protests of wealthy New York families, a party of ten or twelve college students escaped in rowboats across Hallets Pond, carrying their clothes in their arms.

A blinding snow was falling, and there was a cold wind, which caused the fugitives to suffer keenly until they reached the other side of the pond and were able to dress themselves. Fearing they would capsize the small boats the students did not dare to dress until they reached the shore, and so precipitate had been their flight from the roadhouses that they had time only to gather their clothes in their arms and run for the boats.

As it was, several of them dropped shoes, collars and other pieces of wearing apparel. Some of these bear identifying marks, and may be had by their owners upon application to Sheriff Charles E. Nichols in person.

The raids followed the complaints of many wealthy families who have country homes near Hallets Pond, and who told of the nightly caravans in the two road houses. Investigators found that college students, mostly from New Haven, were in the habit of making frequent journeys to Brewster, passing a night or more in the two road houses upon which the raids were made this morning.

The "business" increased to such proportions that the residents observed new women living at the place. Investigators found that each place had obtained four or five women from New York.

Piano playing and the loud singing of ribald songs began soon after the arrival of the students each night much to the annoyance of the neighbors. There was excessive drinking until late, and then quiet would reign until daylight, when the students could be seen starting back for the Connecticut border.

With two squads of deputies Sheriff Nichols waited for the period of quiet this morning, and then went to the roadhouse. While they were breaking in the front doors the students escaped through the rear. Several, it was said, leaped from rear windows. The Sheriff had the road "covered," cutting off escape in that direction, and did not believe anyone would venture on the point in the snowstorm.

The neighbors heard much screaming of women when the deputies entered the places. Mrs. George W. Ashmore and her husband and four girls were arrested in one place, and were made to dress. They were taken at once before Justice of the Peace James Murty, who held court in his home at half-past four this morning, holding Ashmore and his wife in $1,000 bail, and each of the girls in $500.

In the other place the Sheriff and his men arrested Mrs. Esther Stafford and four girls. They were sent to jail at Carmel, and will be arraigned to-day.

INVESTED WITH CROSS.

Press advices say that His Majesty the King has invested Lieut. Frank Badgley, Sc. 16, with the Military Cross. Lieut. Badgley was awarded the Military Cross for the work which he did in connection with observing the effect of artillery fire in the Canadian operations on the Somme front.

The 309th anniversary of the birth of John Harvard, the founder of Harvard University, was celebrated last week by the students and faculty of that institution.

FORMER ARTS MAN
FLIGHT-303-LIEUT.
Neil McDiarmid, Arts '17, Now
in Royal Naval Air Service.

VICTORIA, B.C. — Flight Sub-
Lieut. Neil McDiarmid, who has been serving for many months in the Royal
Naval Air Service, has arrived home
and will spend three months' leave
in this city. He is the son of Mr. F.
A. McDiarmid, of 1315 Hampshire
road.

The duties of Sub-Lieut. McDiarmid
were confined principally to patrol
work along the coast of England, and his daring exploits more than once brought him close to death, his scapes from serious injury being miraculous. He has twice experienced the sensation of falling from the sky, but on neither occasion were his injuries severe. His first fall was caused by engine trouble, and the accident resulted in the death of his mechanic. The second mishap occurred
some months later, while he was taking part in a chase after a zeppelin that had been invading the English coast.

The returned young officer speaks in glowing terms of the efficiency of the British and Allied aircraft. The Germans are heavily outnumbered in their aerial forces, and the power and speed of the Allies' machines have developed to a much higher point.

Lieut. McDiarmid is a former student of Arts '17.

FORMER ARTS MAN
FLIGHT-303-LIEUT.
Neil McDiarmid, Arts '17, Now
in Royal Naval Air Service.

VICTORIA, B.C. — Flight Sub-
Lieut. Neil McDiarmid, who has been serving for many months in the Royal
Naval Air Service, has arrived home
and will spend three months' leave
in this city. He is the son of Mr. F.
A. McDiarmid, of 1315 Hampshire
road.

The duties of Sub-Lieut. McDiarmid
were confined principally to patrol
work along the coast of England,
and his daring exploits more than once brought him close to death, his scapes from serious injury being miraculous. He has twice experienced the sensation of falling from
the sky, but on neither occasion were his injuries severe. His first fall was caused by engine trouble, and the accident resulted in the death of his mechanic. The second mishap occurred
some months later, while he was taking part in a chase after a zeppelin
that had been invading the English
coast.

The returned young officer speaks
in glowing terms of the efficiency of the British and Allied aircraft. The Germans are heavily outnumbered in their aerial forces, and the power and
speed of the Allies' machines have developed to a much higher point.

Lieut. McDiarmid is a former student of Arts '17.
